Community Spirit in Action: Grandpa Joe's Supports Town

Canonsburg, PA - In a display of community spirit, Grandpa Joe's recently donated over $10,000 worth of candy to the Canonsburg Volunteer Fire Department and Canonsburg Police Department for distribution on Halloween night. This generous contribution ensured that local children experienced a fun and memorable trick-or-treat evening, filled with smiles, laughter, and, of course, plenty of candy.

Out of this World Candy AND a Monolith gone viral?

ANOTHER monolith appears outside candy shop in Pittsburgh after mysterious metal pillars appeared and were removed in California, Utah desert and Romania

By LYDIA CATLING FOR MAILONLINE

PUBLISHED: 07:09 EDT, 5 December 2020 | UPDATED: 12:39 EDT, 5 December 2020

Another monolith appeared outside a sweet shop in Pittsburgh this week after mysterious metal pillars were discovered and later removed in California, Utah desert and Romania. Since mid-November, shining metal monoliths have suddenly appeared and then vanished, with the latest showing up outside Grandpa Joe's candy store. The tall metal structures have garnered lots of interest, with people stopping to pose for pictures with the latest mysterious pillar. Since it went up, passersby have been doing double takes as they stroll past the monolith positioned outside the store - stopping to marvel at its size.

Pedestrians have been spotted checking it out and posing next to the large monolith while having their picture taken. Owner of the Pittsburgh candy store, Christopher Beers, has since revealed he commissioned the 10-foot tall, 24-in wide triangle of plywood covered in sheet metal. Mr Beers said he decided to capitalize on the recent interest in the mystery structures and hoped it would provide some light relief from coronavirus news. 'There is a mystery behind it,' said Beers, even though he stripped the whodunit angle from his monolith, which he freely admits was designed to drive up candy sales. Beers said he was captivated by sculptures that made headlines and enlisted a colleague to erect a similar enigma outside his store.

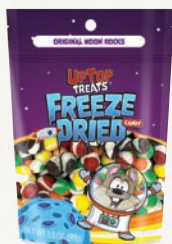

One Facebook post was all it took to generate a media buzz around the 'mysterious' metallic creation. 'Hopefully, it's a reminder to support small, local businesses that have been so badly hit' by coronavirus, said Beers, owner of the independent chain of 10 candy stores in Pennsylvania and Ohio. 'And isn't it fun to have something to talk about beside the pandemic?!' Since the monolith went up, business has been brisk at Grandpa Joe's. Customers eagerly take selfies with the monolith before heading inside to load up on Christmas sweets. The Facebook post is also driving candy sales online. 'Come see the Monolith before it mysteriously disappears,' said a post on a Facebook page for Grandpa Joe's. 'Is it made out of chocolate?' commented one hopeful fan on the page.

Elsewhere, tourists were flocking to the new metal monolith in California, after it showed up within days of others in Romania and Utah being removed.

Community in Action

"I strongly encourage all of our retail partners to find ways to be active in the community"

Grandpa Joe's Supports Town

Canonsburg, PA - In a display of community spirit, Grandpa Joe's recently donated over $10,000 worth of candy to the Canonsburg Volunteer Fire Department and Canonsburg Police Department for distribution on Halloween night. This generous contribution ensured that local children experienced a fun and memorable trick-or-treat evening, filled with smiles, laughter, and, of course, plenty of candy.

"They drive their trucks around on trick-or-treat night throughout the community and pass out candy to the kids, and Grandpa Joe's is proud to give them that candy to hand out," said Christopher J. Beers, Founder and CEO of Grandpa Joe's. "I know my kids look forward to the flashing lights in the middle of the night. They know they're going to get candy from the firemen. It's a cool way for the community kids to connect with those important people that are helping our community."

The fire and police departments were fully engaged in the festivities, with five fire trucks and four police vehicles patrolling the streets to distribute the candy. The effort highlighted the close-knit nature of the Canonsburg community and Grandpa Joe's commitment to giving back.

Grandpa Joe's involvement in local events underscores the company's belief in fostering strong, community-centered relationships. "I strongly encourage all of our retail partners to find ways to be active in the community", says Beers. "Even small donations like a business card for a free lollipop can make for an incentive for a school reading program or summer day camp."

HOT NEWS

Grandpa Joe's Soda Works Unveils World's First Hot Dog Water Soda

Pittsburgh, PA - Grandpa Joe's, known for its bold and imaginative soda innovations, proudly introduces its latest creation: Hot Dog Water soda. This one-of-a-kind beverage is now available for wholesale customers looking to add a head-turning, conversation-starting product to their offerings.

Christopher J. Beers, Founder of Grandpa Joe's, shared his excitement about the new release: "In 2017, we made Pickle Soda famous worldwide. In 2020, we created the World's First Ketchup Soda. And now, we've crafted the world's first Hot Dog Water soda, a lightly carbonated sugary salute to the 150-year-old wiener in a bun."

Grandpa Joe's Soda Works has earned a reputation for delivering unexpected, crowd-pleasing craft sodas. The Hot Dog Water soda is the latest testament to the team's creativity and dedication to pushing flavor boundaries. "Hot Dog Water has been a long-running joke," Beers remarked, "and today we've brought it to life in a bottle"

Wholesale customers can now add this unique soda to their lineup, providing their customers with a flavor adventure unlike any other. With the nostalgic craft soda bottling facility in Spring Lake Park, MN, Grandpa Joe's Soda Works ensures efficient production and nationwide distribution of its innovative soda catalog.

For more information on creating your own craft soda, reach out to sodaworks@grandpajoes.com.
